How does a 120-year-old promise drive Guarantee Electrical Company today?

Guarantee's heritage—their legacy—is driven by the guarantee its founders made in 1904 to electrify the St. Louis World's Fair.

Electricity was in its infancy, and the Louisiana Purchase Exposition highlighted this innovation of power and light for the world. The installation lasted for the entire year of the fair, and Guarantee Electrical was born.

Today, Guarantee Electrical lives at the dawn of a new era of global electrical innovation. Energy solutions, healthy buildings, and renewable power are all critical pieces of today's Guarantee. And whether it is the Saint Louis Zoo, the Missouri Botanical Garden, or Ballpark Village—wherever you live, work, or play in St. Louis—your path is powered and illuminated by Guarantee's extraordinary team.

Proudly staking their claim as one of the largest and most successful electrical contractors in the nation, Guarantee is now poised to achieve even greater results and reach new heights. These truths will never change: They are employee-owned, purpose-driven, and people-first; a home for the best and the brightest in the craft.

Guarantee's team of 1,000 is united in the evergreen commitment to "Living Our Guarantees." They exist to partner, energize, deliver, and to make a difference in the community of St. Louis—their home yesterday, today, and tomorrow.
